

SPIRAL POINT TRADING

Automated Systems DOW, Er2, ES-mini

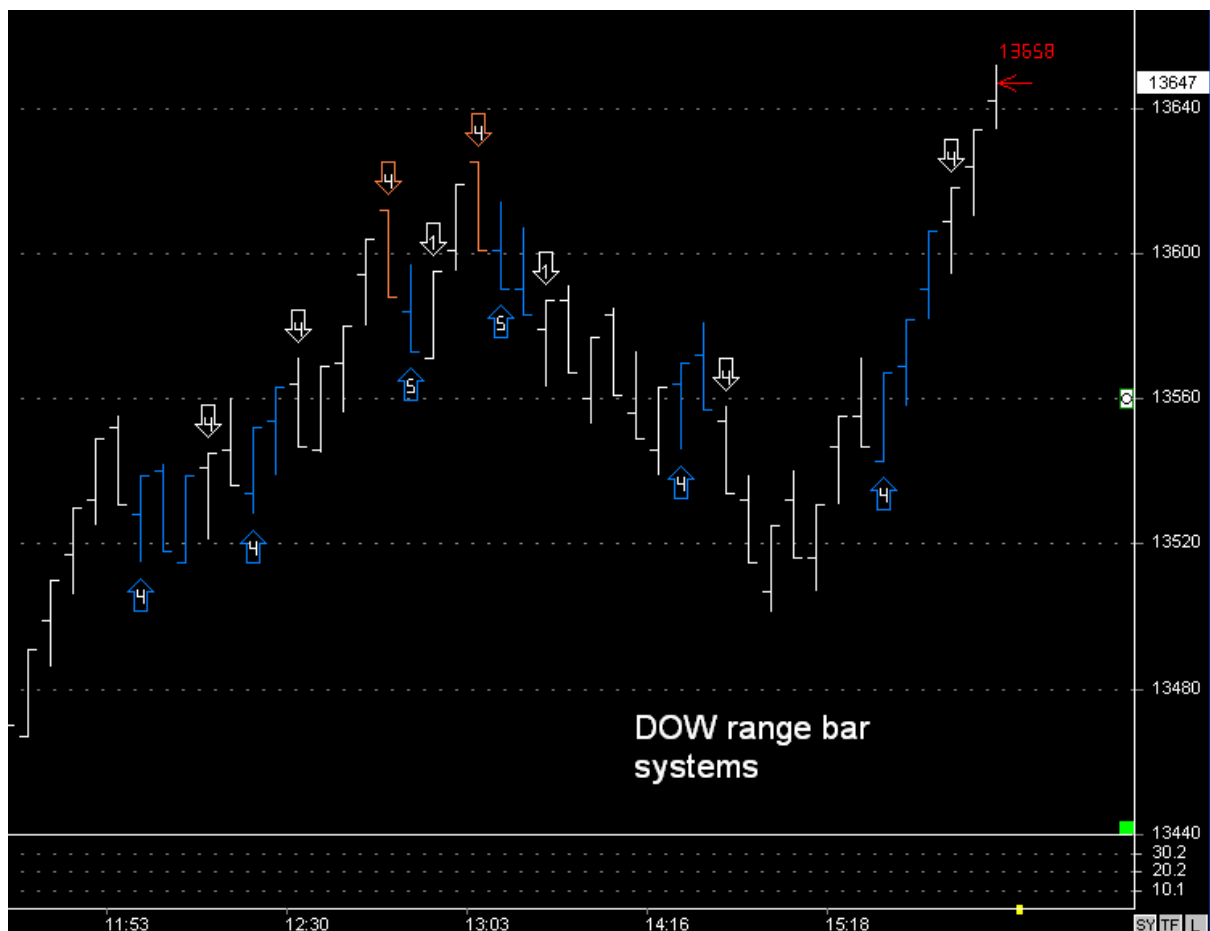

1st November 2007

In November 2005 I started the AMT systems with the release of the 2nd Edition of Analytical Market Trading 'a window into the future'.

These were auto-traded systems used on Range Bars on three US markets, the DOW, ER2, and ES-minis. These three systems were traded with 1 contract and a starting account of $10,000 each. It wasn't until January 2007 that as the account grew that the systems were increased to 2 contracts.

And in July 2007 the systems were increased to reflect $250USD per 10 points in each market.

These systems are completely automated.

Above is an example of how the systems work on all three markets. They are intra-day systems that can trigger multiple times during any day session.

	DOW	Er2	ES	Total
Starting November 2005 (1 contract)
	$10,000	$10,000	$10,000	$30,000
December 2006
	$21,720	$29,317	$26,662	$122,938
January-June 2007 (2 contracts)
	$15704	$21084	$11,021	$170,747
July-October 2007
(5 contracts)		(3 contracts)	(4 contracts)
	$32407	$10,447	$33713
TOTAL	$69,831	$60,848	$71,396	$232075

1stNovember2007

At the start of July 2007 systems have been increased to reflect $250 per 10-point movements:

DOW 5 contracts, Er2 3 contracts ES 4 contracts

I personally know when these systems are at their most robust, and I know when these systems are going to experience their worse draw downs. These systems will be switched off when US markets are trading below the 50% levels of the past 3 months, and only trade when they are above them.

Note: ER2 in November is now trading below 50% levels and auto-system has been switched off.
